COMMENCEMENT

America the Beautiful

Katherine Lee Bates (1859-1929)

O beautiful for spacious skies,
For amber waves of grain,
For purple mountain majesties
Above the fruited plain!
America! America!
God shed His grace on thee,
And crown thy good with brotherhood,
From sea to shining sea!

O beautiful for pilgrim feet,
Whose stern, impassioned stress
A thoroughfare for freedom beat
Across the wilderness!
America! America!
God mend thine ev'ry flaw,
Confirm thy soul in self-control,
Thy liberty in law!

Miss Bates, professor of English at Wellesley College, wrote the lyrics of "America the Beautiful" after a visit to the summit of Pikes Peak in 1893, when she was serving as an instructor in the summer session at Colorado College.

The Colorado College Hymn

St. Anne, Croft

O God, our help in ages past,
Our hope for years to come,
Our shelter from the stormy blast
And our eternal home.

Under the shadow of Thy throne
Thy saints have dwelt secure;
Sufficient is thine arm alone,
And our defence is sure.

Before the hills in order stood,
Or earth received her frame,
From everlasting Thou art God,
To endless years the same.

A thousand ages in Thy sight
Are like an evening gone;
Short as the watch that ends the night
Before the rising sun.

Time, like an ever-rolling stream,
Bears all its sons away;
They fly, forgotten, as a dream
Dies at the opening day.

O God, our help in ages past,
Our hope for years to come,
Be Thou our guide while life shall last
And our eternal home. Amen.

—Isaac Watts

A Note on Academic Costume

The academic costume worn by faculty gives commencement much of its traditional air of pageantry. So much so, that with its long, flowing gown and brightly colored hood, the costume would seem to have been designed for just this purpose. In fact, academic costume was designed in the Middle Ages, when all students were clerics, with much more practical considerations in mind. The gown and its attached hood helped to keep off the chill in the unheated buildings of the day. Even the bright linings of the hood were chosen with the purpose of identifying the religious order to which the student belonged.

To the knowledgeable observer, American academic costume today can be just as informative about its wearer. Based on the intercollegiate code established in 1895, each aspect of the costume, such as gown color, mortar board tassel, and sleeve shape, indicates something about its wearer and the degrees received.

The gown is usually black, although some universities have adopted a brighter color scheme. The color of the tassel can indicate the highest degree the wearer has earned, with a doctor's cap, for instance, frequently bearing a tassel of gold. The sleeves are even more informative, with long pointed sleeves indicating the holder of a bachelor's degree; oblong sleeves, a master's degree; and bell shaped sleeves, a doctor or specialist.

The doctor can be distinguished from the specialist by the three bars that adorn the sleeves of the gown.

With its brightly colored lining, the hood is the outstanding feature of the academic costume. The color of the lining indicates the college or university that has granted the degree—Colorado College hoods, for instance, are lined in gold. Each hood bears a border, the color of which is determined by the degree the wearer has earned. So, a doctor of philosophy's hood will always have a border of blue, regardless of the field studied.

Among institutional colors which may be seen at today's commencement are the following: University of California, gold, blue chevron; University of Chicago, maroon; University of Colorado, gold, silver gray chevron; Columbia University, light blue, white chevron; Harvard University, crimson; University of Illinois, dark blue, two orange chevrons; Indiana University, crimson, white chevron; Johns Hopkins University, dark blue, gold chevron; University of Michigan, maize, azure blue chevron; Massachusetts Institute of Technology, bright red, silver grey chevron; Northwestern University, purple, gold chevron; University of Pennsylvania, cardinal, blue chevron; Princeton University, orange, black chevron; Stanford University, cardinal; University of Wisconsin, bright red; Yale University, dark blue.

The Colorado College

In 1871 General William Jackson Palmer, head of the Denver and Rio Grande Railroad, laid out the city of Colorado Springs along his new line from Denver. Envisioning a model city, he reserved land and contributed funds for a college. Colorado College opened under the auspices of the Congregational Church on May 6, 1874 with twelve students and two faculty members.

Today we celebrate the 100th anniversary of the College's first Commencement exercises. In 1882 there were two members of the graduating class; today there are 496. At that ceremony 100 years ago, the entire crowd was able to fit in the College chapel, which was located in what at that time was the College's only building, Cutler Hall, and the College's second president, Edward P. Tenney, presided. Today, the College's tenth president, Gresham Riley, will preside over his first Commencement at Colorado College.
